We Can All Do Hard Things

KELLY HUTCHESON: An in-depth discussion on being passionate about conscious parenting. Connect more with your children, get them to listen without yelling and restore the harmony in your home forever. Kelly is a bundle of encouraging energy who radiates this through her message of having fun again with your children. She is addicted to positivity and will help you see your children in their miraculous light!

OLIVIA & MIRANDA: Feeling stuck in a social media rut? Not sure what success on social media looks like? Does it feel like it's all just a waste of your time? During this workshop, you'll discover the 10 keys to finding and creating a successful social media strategy, along with recommendations on how to spend your time and build your social media presence.

MELANIE HILL: This is the first time in American history that four generations are represented in the workforce at the same time. By understanding the strengths, limitations, and values of each generation, managers and leaders can avoid the organizational conflict, employee turnover, and lost productivity that occurs when business professionals are unaware of the differences of the different generations in the workplace.

MY PAINT PARTY: Get in touch with your creative side and join My Paint Party for a fun session creating authentic driftwood art.

HOLLY GARDNER: Holly has been called a lot of things - engineer, artist, wife, widow, food allergy mom, reluctant chef, paraplegic, writer and fighter...the common theme throughout her existence has been her persistence, positivity, and resiliency. She will share researched-based strategies for overcoming whatever life throws at you and her belief that we are ALL capable of doing hard things.
